-Hot in the arts more clrectly conducive to better conditions of light the arts which make the inneteenth century the lest time the word has ever seen our country's contributions are far ahead. The that recomplive that ever ran in Italy was made at Taunton, Mass., and having sasked into German hands is now "on the retired ist," laid up in veneration at the great machine sho i of Eslingen, in Wurteinburg. As far as 1 know, there are on y our steam life engines in all the cities of Northam Italy, all made at Am oskeag, N. H. In Itlan' two emment music teachers use planos made at Baltimore; and re-cently there was an annual concert there, a great fair under royal paironage, and it was among the great things on the list that a due would be played on two American pignos. Rass a Bellim Discrett, and all the other great composers, never knew such a thing as a rousing splendid himoforte, and very few Italians have yet ever American dentists in Florence and Milan have a high reputation and more lutrative practice among stations as well as with the foreigners, than any native dentist. The same is the case in Stuffgart, Geneva, Munich am Zurich. "American shampsoning" is conspicuously indi-cated in the best barier's clops in talian cities, and the equivalent for "rue American gold ens' is a sign to be seen in the sho) windows, it two Italians quarrel, revolvers made at Hartford, Conn., are the only things which will set the their differences in a pleasant sort of way. There is a theory among those who are fal-miliar with ocean travel, that at the time of the disaster to the Hearnship Schiller, the officers and crew were drunk. Nearing the coast of ingland, expecting on the morrow to turn the ship and its remaining stores over to a rival company, it was he last night out for the officers and crew, if not the end of their term of employment; for we have no knowledge that any of them expected to be employed by the killed three Polk said it wouldn't, he will burst. Polk said it wouldn't, he will burst. Polk said it wouldn't, any of them expected to be employed by the killed three picked on the new management. Under these circumstances— head and appropried it is very natural to suppose that all hands, from the captain down, had indulged heavily in wines, if not stronger liquors, as a sort of fare well bout. The last night out is frequently oberved in this convivial manner on board ships which have not yet gone to the bottom of the ocean. If we recollect correctly, the only first chass calm passenger who escaled from the Schiller with his life, testified that all of the crew, and many of the officers, were drank: th rony is because there are no more people to Steerage passengers would know noth. my of what was transpiring in the grand saloon. And only one woman was saved, and not a sitgle child and there were many very pretty children on board. If the truth were fully known, we have little doubt but this dire on lamity, which sent serrow and mourning to hundreds of homes on both sides of the Allan tic, was directly fraceable to intemperance

In a town to another. Ordinary means were out of the question; and as the engineers found them selves unable to devise any process, they did the next best thing, and wrote to other engineers in England who were honstantly squery-sing such work. The latter, instead of writing our nice large pages of fordscap, beautifully ended tolard with Greek let or formula, and red nice quetly whiled until the next lig piece of metal which they had to transport offered a favorable opportunity. Then they prepared z crosses, and photographed every step of the aperate'n together with all the tools and apprilmances, and forwarded the prints from the negatives to Index. These the engineers in the far on country followed, and with little difficulty accomplished their task. A recent London letter thus closes. I finish with a piece of "go-sip," which, if I were rot a sive susp con in that respect, some might con-siller scandal. The wife of one of these great b tanciers, whom the committee on foreign loans repeate and obtgoing a state of the state of a factor of the form of the bake of a deal arghite attend one of her receptions. I conclude, from my knowledge of His Royal Highness frugality, that he divided the "swag," but even supposing he did, was it not buying money a little dearly. I think after recent revelations he would not se I himself to the same party. I mean an even mg party at the same house so cheap. Still force is a large price, and shows that rank is not only "the guinea's stamp" as quoted above,

The Boston Artist speaking of her says: The old classic tales of wilely fidelity and sacrifice almost pale be ore her heroic search for her husband's tate for more than thirty years. Left alone at an age gron volitude of ice deserts; her spirit was in the vague regions where there is nothing of vegeta ion, where an aw iil and eternal silence reigns, but where, also, she believed that her her i husband, dead or alive, must be. We may guess that for long years there dwelt a hope her heart that Sir ohn was yet alive; that he has somehow escaped, perhaps, from the vast ice mison; that he sar passer, by perilous wan. derings, and it might be by ship-wreck, ar be-yond the frozen North, and had been thrown san some remote but hospitable land, where the grass grew and men could live. Then came. the truth, that the vestiges of Franklin and his mer had been 'ound, vestiges which left, no doubt of their identity, or of the long ago ac-complished fate of the voyagers. Certainty, even the saddest, is setter than harrowing suapente; and Lady Franklin was as herose under the ure bereavement as she had horne up nobly while there was still hope.
